For Immediate Release: First In Restoration Leadership Team Adds Two Certifications

ATLANTA – In the ongoing effort to increase their levels of skill and service, two executives with First In Restoration have added two additional certifications to their resume.

David King, owner of First In Restoration, and Collin Ogg, director of operations of First in Restoration, took classes and attained their certifications through the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification (IICRC).

“First In Restoration is always looking for ways to better serve our clients,” Mr. King said. “These certifications are another step toward expanding our skills so we can help additional businesses and individuals.”

Mr. King and Mr. Ogg attended classes and passed their exams for these classes:

Health and Safety Technician: The certification covers occupational health and safety (OSHA) and demonstrates competency in cleaning, maintenance and restoration industries concerning the Global Harmonized System (GHS) and health and safety principles. The certification promotes the importance of hazard and risk assessments and implements controls on the identified hazards.

Trauma and Crime Scene Technician: This certification covers the unique situations encountered when performing trauma and crime scene cleanup, regardless of surface, item or location. It is based on the ANSI/IICRC S540 Standard for Trauma and Crime Scene Cleanup.
